

POLICE & CRIME
COMMISSIONER for Leicestershire

Your voice in Leicester,

Tuesday 6 January

I refer to the report Girls in the Criminal Justice System published by the HM Inspectorate of Probation on 19 December 2014.

I have noted the report and its recommendations about how best to make improvements in this important area of work.

As the Police and Crime Commissioner for Leicester, Leicestershire and Rutland, I provide funding to a number of early intervention schemes to help steer young people away from the Criminal Justice System through a range of mechanisms that place at their heart the best interests of those involved.

I, along with Leicestershire Police, will continue to work in partnership with a number of different agencies to ensure that the needs of all young people, including girls, are identified and that appropriate services are commissioned to meet those needs.
