Vigils and Gatherings

In March 2021 Sarah Everard was tragically killed and a police officer in the Metropolitan Police Service was arrested and charged with her kidnap and murder. The circumstances of the incident prompted national concern around female safety and policing. Sarah's death led to a proposed vigil on Clapham Common. The MPS discouraged the gathering, as did the Home Office, NPCC and Minister for Policing due to the Covid-19 pandemic and national lockdown that was in place. Specifically, The Health Protection (Coronavirus Restrictions) Regulations 2020 restricted gatherings in public of more than two people. There are defined exceptions in the restriction, but none allowed for public protest or vigils.

On the 13th March the gathering went ahead against the requests of the bodies outlined above and it was attended by a significant number of people who were in close proximity to each other. The MPS provided a policing response to the gathering that led to arrests and the dispersal of attendees, at times through the use of physical force. The policing response was widely condemned as excessive and inappropriate.

Other force, such as Sussex Police, have also had to manage a policing response to gatherings in the name of Sarah and their responses have also faced criticism for being "too heavy handed".

The right to gather to pay respects or to raise political awareness of rights are fundamental actions of a democratic society that are normally supported positively by the police and partner agencies. However, under the exceptional national lockdown and statutory requirements they are not permitted and the police are left with the challenge of protecting public health through the use of legal powers in extremely emotive circumstances.

- 1) What are the committee's views on such gatherings taking place?
- 2) Should gatherings like this be dispersed and if so is the use of force appropriate?
- 3) What considerations should Leicestershire Police have if similar events are planned/occur in our force area?
